FEAR BALLOONS BLOWN TO SEA

VAN ORMAN MAY WIN AGAIN; HE MADE 705 MILES

Five Of National Race Bags Still Unheard From

BOSTON, June 1.—Two of the three balloons in the national race from Akron, Ohio, seen over New England were blown to sea in a storm during the night it was feared today.

They are United States Army No. 3 observed passing over Nashua, N. H., and headed for Nova Scotia, and the Scripps-Howard entry last sighted over Richford, Vt., on the Canadian line.

Goodyear V., which came to earth in a field at Hancock, Me., fifteen miles from Bar Harbor and the sea, was packed up today by Ward T. Orman, pilot, 1926 national balloon champion, and his aide, Walter W. Morton. They had travelled 705 miles, the longest distance of any of the balloons reported from Akron.

AKRON, O., Jun. 1.—All but five of the fifteen balloons which started from here Memorial Day in the national balloon race, had been accounted for here early to day according to reports to race officials. Whereabouts of the missing five were unknown at an early hour this morning.

The ten which were accounted for early today and the point where they landed, follow:

Army No. 1.—Crabtree Lake, N. Y., 400 miles from Akron.

Army No. 2.—Malone, N. Y., 450 miles from Akron.

Army No. 4.—Martinsburg, N. Y., 362 1/2 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 1.—Pope Mills, N. Y., 100 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 2.—Keating Summit, Pa., 175 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 3.—Mottville, N. Y., 125 miles from Akron.

Goodyear, Akron.—Bar Harbor, Me., 705 miles from Akron.

Franco-American.—Brockville, Ont., 425 miles from Akron.

Beacon-Journal, Akron.—Hartsville, N. Y., 350 miles from Akron.

Detroit No. 1.—Parksville Station, N. Y., 340 miles from Akron.

The five which were still missing early today, are as follows:

Detroit No. 2.—S. A. Rasmussen, pilot.

Detroit No. 3.—E. J. Hill, pilot.

Army No. 3.—Capt. E. W. Keiper, pilot.

Davey Tree Expert Company.—R. P. Lehr, pilot.

Scripps-Howard.—J. E. Boettner, pilot.

PROPOSE PROBE OF ILLINOIS BOXING

CHICAGO, June 1.—"Our slate is clean and we have nothing to fear," said John Riehle, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, in commenting today upon the proposed investigation by the state legislature of the commission's handling of boxing and wrestling events in Chicago.

The investigating body, appointed by the legislature, is scheduled to convene in the county building here Friday. The members will inquire into charges of "graft," "favoritism," and "fraternalism."

Affidavits are said to be in the hands of investigators citing alleged instances of graft and conspiracy to "throw" decisions. It is also charged that gambling syndicates here, with branches in New York, practically dictate the course of each major boxing and wrestling match.

AGED VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR MARRIES

QUINCY, Ill., Jun. 1.—Captain W. A. Tyler, 99 years old, probably the sole survivor of the battle at the fall of Ft. Sumter in 1861, and Mrs. Martha Jellison, 70, were married at the Illinois Soldiers' Home by G. V. Gowdy, chaplain.

A crowd of 800 watched the service and heard State Senator Earl B. Search praise the gallantry of Captain Tyler.

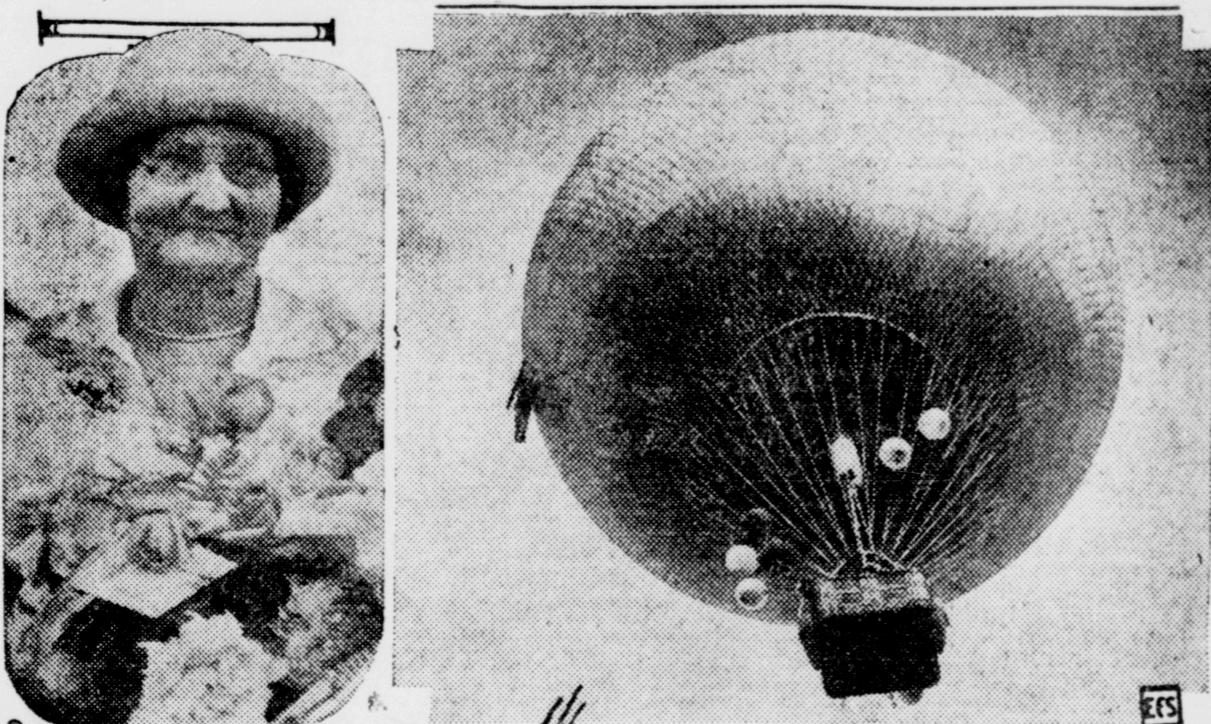

Captain Tyler once was superintendent of Arlington Cemetery. His health is good and he is alert mentally.

INSURANCE APPEAL WON

HARRISBURG, Penn., June 1.—The Dauphin County Court today ruled that the State Insurance Commissioner had been in error in revoking the license of the Modern Woodmen of America, a fraternal beneficiary society, to transact business in Pennsylvania and declared the order of revocation to be void.

Fifteen balloons soared into the air at Akron, O., on Memorial Day, entrants in the National Balloon Race. The above pictures show Army Balloon No. 3 in the air, a shot made from below, and on the left, Mrs. M. Ables, Ohio's war mother, sponsor of the Akron Beacon Journal's balloon.

GOVERNOR APPLIES VETO TO ELECTIONS CODE BILL TUESDAY

Will Call Solons In Special Session To Pass New Law

COLUMBUS, O., June 1.—Declaring that a closer study of the Chappelar-Herbert elections code bill, which he had previously announced he would permit to become law, revealed that it contained provisions "thoroughly iniquitous," Governor Vic Donahey vetoed the bill late last night, and announced he will call the legislature, which adjourned sine die yesterday, into special session in January, to enact election reform legislation.

Whether or not other subjects for legislation will be submitted to the special session was not indicated by the governor. Unless the bill stipulates other legislation, the session will be limited to the passage of election laws.

The governor cited as his reason for vetoing the bill, among others, the allegation that "corrupt political bosses had so loaded the measure with amendments that they felt sure it would be vetoed."

"At its stand," he declared, "it is a machine highly geared for corrupt political use."

The veto message charged that the bill deprived women of equal representation on state central political committee, by repealing the Orr bill; that it required candidates for state offices to obtain signatures of 1 per cent of voters at the preceding state election, which was "too stringent," that the bill required three registration periods, thus preventing proper check on late registrants and encouraging the voting of "floaters," that election board clerks were given too much power; that salaries of election officials were so fixed as to discriminate against smaller communities; and that the basis of organization of precincts was the vote in 1926, which was much smaller than the 1924 vote, thus preventing many voters from obtaining ballots, through the provision for printing only 10 per cent more ballots than the number of votes cast in the 1926 election.

KELLY SENTENCED

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—Paul Kelly, motion picture actor, convicted last week of manslaughter as a result of his fatal fist fight with Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor, today was sentenced from one to ten years in state prison. Oral notice of appeal was filed and Kelly was returned to jail without bond.

THE MONEY OR THE CHEILD

CHICAGO, June 1.—Jacqueline Forbes is three years old. She has been cared for since infancy by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meyers, and her mother has not seen her since she was a year old. Now Mrs. Forbes has her daughter and has filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, since the Meyers family is holding the child until the board bill of $340 is paid. Mrs. Forbes will act as her own attorney.

EDUCATOR DIES AT HOME IN LANCASTER

LANCASTER, O., June 1.—C. C. Miller, 70 years old, prominent Ohio educator, died here yesterday following a short illness.

Mrs. Frank L. Miller acted as chairman of the program, on which Lieut. Col. Mumford, Columbus, was chief speaker. Mrs. Horace G. McMillan, D. A. R. regent, made a short dedication speech and Judge Frank M. Clevenger spoke briefly.

ONTARIO'S NEW OASIS OPENS WEDNESDAY

WINDSOR, Ont., June 1.—"When is a tourist not a tourist?" promises to be one of the most vexing of problems which will face officials of the Ontario Liquor Control Board as the government's new liquor stores opened for business here today.

That visitors from foreign shores must be bona fide tourists if they would benefit under the liquor law was the word sent out when decision was reached to establish government dispensaries here. It brought puzzled expressions to those charged with administering the law here.

"What is a tourist, anyway?" one official asked.

"I've never heard anyone say you couldn't take a one-day tour of a foreign country if you live as close to a boundary line as Detroit is to Windsor."

Another official explained: "If a resident of Detroit comes here and makes the necessary declaration that he is a legitimate tourist the law has no machinery to check his statement. It has not been explained to us just what a tourist is anyway. The only thing we can do is to give him a permit and fill his order."

And that seems to be the general impression both here and in Detroit.

The two liquor stores here opened for business this morning at 10 o'clock. Stocking of the stores has been in progress for several days with beers and ales, gins and brandies, ryes, Scotch and bourbons, and wines of numerous descriptions.

Naval Conference U. S. Favors 5-5-3 Japanese Plan

British Program

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

ASHINGTON, June 1.—America is going to the three-power naval conference at Geneva determined to do its utmost to induce Great Britain and Japan to apply the 5-5-3 ratio to cruisers, destroyers and submarines. The United States, in other words, seeks to limit auxiliary craft in the same measure as the Washington of 1922 limited capital ships.

The Coolidge administration, which has convened the Geneva meeting, will attempt there to carry out what the Washington conference left undone. The American delegation will present the United States' program to powers that were ready to accept it at Washington five years ago. Both Lord Balfour, for Great Britain, and Mr. Hanhart, for Japan, categorically placed on record the rediness of their respective governments to accept the 5-5-3 ratio for auxiliary craft along corresponding limitation for battle cruisers.

LOOPS OUT—AND LIVES!

Lieutenant James A. Doolittle holds the distinction of being the only man in the world to make an outside loop-the-loop in an airplane. He did it over McCook Field, Dayton, O., dropping 2,000 feet to gain enough speed—he went 250 miles an hour—to swing up the other side. The loop is dangerous because the downward swing throws the flier with such force against the straps that there is danger of breaking, and several have lost their lives trying to do it. Doolittle used extra straps.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE FOUNTAIN OF PRAISE—O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it. Psalm 51:16.

FLIGHT OF FAR-REACHING VALUE

Charley Lindbergh's successful flight to Paris alone in a land plane, going it "blind," ranks as the most audacious accomplishment in the annals of aviation. The warmth of the reception he received may help to wipe out many past misunderstandings, and this outcome of his conquest of the air passage from New York to Paris has its possibility of values which may be of more vital importance than the things his non-stop flight has contributed to the field of aviation.

The enthusiasm of the welcome and the apparent depth of its sincerity indicate that France has taken Lindbergh to its heart as perhaps it has no other American. And in doing this, it is paying tribute to a heroic young man who has given evidence of being a level-headed, clear-thinking doer, not a "flying fool," except as that phrase is used in an admiring sense for his extraordinary ability in aviation.

As the French become more intimately acquainted with their American guest who has so quickly achieved world fame they are bound to recognize in him some of the qualities which always have been likeable in the higher types of manhood in Yankee land, and included among these is that jewel known as true modesty. In Lindbergh, America has a conquering hero of such personality and character that there is genuine pleasure that the laurels of the prize flight have been won by such a man, single handed.

DANGER IN WORDS

The power to climb out of the moral backwash into which we slipped after the World War can only come as our tongue ceases to wag with debilitating and enfeebling words and expressions, opines Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in an article in "Psychology" Magazine in which he discusses the effect of words on actions.

Dr. Fosdick feels that the greatest danger to the present generation lies in their willingness to steer their lives by words of weak compliance with popular customs of thought and life. He says:

"When in any generation such words as 'Everybody's doing it,' begin to fly from lip to lip their hypnotic power is very great. This would be dangerous at any time. It is ruinous today, for we are still in the moral backwash of the great war."

There are plays in our theatres," the famous pastor continues, "which, if left to ourselves, we never should produce or care particularly to see. There are social practices where liberty has long since slipped over into license, at which, if we told the truth about ourselves, we inwardly wince. But 'everybody is doing it,' is all the go, and so, our reluctance dissolved by these hypnotic words, we see those plays, we condone those practices. Marvelous is the power of the tongue repeating shibboleths of popularity. It can boast of great exploits.

Other words which exercise an enormous and unnecessary influence on our lives, according to Dr. Fosdick's article in "Psychology" are skeptical and disillusioned words such as, "What is the use?" shoddy words such as "It will get me by," and defeatist words such as "I am all in."

"Let us stop talking to ourselves debilitating words," concludes Dr. Fosdick. "Our tongues could well nigh save us if they could begin to speak sound and hearty words such as should be expected from one who proposes to stand on his own feet, think his own thoughts, choose his own ideals, hold hard by his own soul and do out his duty."

SLUMP IN ROYAL PRICES

In these days of hard-up European royalty, it is a good thing to know just what prices registered princes on the hoof will bring. A divorce suit now running in Paris, in which the former Aimee Crocker, a Sacramento, Calif., woman of 52, five times married, seeks separation from her prince husband, aged 29, gives the latest available market quotation. The price is $250 a month.

Evidence introduced in the divorce suit indicated that Miss Crocker, wanting a companion, married her prince on the agreement that he was to receive $250 a month as long as the comely bride desired to remain hitched. In case of a divorce, the salary was to go down to $125 a month.

With prices as low as this, it is a wonder that some hustling travel agency has not rounded up the over supply of princes and sublet them for the tourist season. With princes bringing only $250 a month, a good count should find plenty of takers at not much more than his fodder and cigarettes.

Company's Coming

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

A MAN WITH NO HEART
I have been fooled so often lately about supposedly hard-boiled citizens that I am beginning to wonder if anybody is ever as heartless as he lets on.

Not long ago I had occasion to visit a famous business man in his private office. He is commonly believed to be cold and aloof, with no thought for the feelings of the other fellow.

Knowing his reputation, I was curious to learn about his true self, and tried to pry into hidden recesses of his character. Our talk turned to his boyhood days and I asked him about his ancestry. When he spoke of his mother I thought I detected a particular note of sadness in his voice.

"Which parent had the most influence over you?" I asked.

"My mother died when I was barely nine," he said, "and after that my father had to be away so much that I spent most of my time with relatives who seemed to take only scant interest in my activities. But my mother, nevertheless, continued to have a great influence over me."

"After her death," he explained, "I found that I was happiest when busy. Maybe that is why I have been successful in business because I have always been at work." He paused, lighted a cigar, and looked out of the window. Then, as if talking on sudden impulse, he turned to me and told this story:

"My mother was always kind and considerate, and rarely asked me to do many favors for her.

Maybe that wasn't always good for me, because it made me selfish. One day she asked me to go on an errand that I, for some reason, didn't want to do. I finally went, but not in the right spirit, and I was in ill humor when I went down the front steps.

"My mother was in the habit of waving her hand at me from a front window, and I knew she would be there to give me a sweet good-bye as I trudged up the street. But I was mad and mean and purposely did not look back.

"On my return an hour later," he continued, "I learned that my mother, long an invalid, had been taken suddenly ill. I never got to tell her how sorry I was, for she died the next morning."

The hard-boiled business man looked out of the window again and ran his fingers through his shock of gray hair.

Then, he said, in a low tone: "God, how such little things do stick in a man's memory!"

And there were tears in his eyes.

How to Achieve Beauty

SUGGESTIONS FOR A REDUCING DIET

Just as fuel is necessary to produce the steam which furnishes the power to run an engine, so our food, when properly digested and absorbed, provides the energy with which we live and move.

Just as coal is valued by the number of heat units in each pound, so, also, is food measured. In food, however the fuel, and heat units are called calories, and are used to designate the nutritional value of various foods.

The average adult person, engaged in sedentary occupation, requires food valued at about 2300 to 2800 calories per day. If more than this is consumed, it stores itself up as fat in the body. If less are taken Nature uses the fat already stored up to make up the deficit.

This is the fundamental principle behind all plans for reduction in weight. If you eat less than the required amount of calories, the surplus body fat is removed and there will be a loss of about one to one and one-half pounds each week.

A properly arranged diet enables you to accomplish this without discomfort or seeming sacrifice.

Well-regulated exercises are taken during the time you are on your reducing diet, your flabby flesh will become solid and muscular.

It is virtually impossible to arrange a diet that will be suitable for each person who desires to reduce weight. But the general plan consists of creating menus that provide sufficient food to appease your appetite, yet at the same time do not exceed the maximum number of calories allowed for a reducing diet.

Reducing diets should not exceed 1400 calories per day. A good plan is to allow 300 calories for breakfast 300 for lunch and 600 for dinner. All the food one eats contains calories and must be counted. It is a good idea to measure the proportions of your food carefully so that you will not go above the desired number of calories. You should also keep a list of all foods eaten during the day, together with the number of calories each portion contains. In this way you will have a complete record of the exact amount of calories contained in the food you have eaten, and it is found very helpful as a reminder.

Below I have listed a few example menus that comprise a reducing diet which you can follow with assurance that they do not contain more than the desired number of calories.

DE S MOINES, Ia.—Betty Miller and Maxine Williams, both nineteen and pretty, are being held here on an unusual charge. They were arrested following a report that they had been driving around town in an auto asking strange men to ride. Progressive, eh?

WHO SAYS IOWA GIRLS SLOW?

Two unsolved problems which I consider most vital to the welfare of children are the choice of food and the indecent haste in which the meals are eaten. Students do not choose wholesome food, but seem to prefer pie, men to ride. Progressive, eh?

IT WAS IN THE PAPER

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Classified Page.

QUESTIONS

1. What European nations have severed diplomatic relations? What act was the cause?

2. How many persons were convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of a "two-guys" film cowboy? What was his name?

3. What organization connected with a national church body has taken its stand for the modification of the 18th amendment? What church is it connected with?

4. What route has been proposed for a new non-stop flight? What two men have offered prizes?

5. Where was gold discovered in a creek by a farmer boy? Where did it come from?

6. What aviator was first to accomplish successfully the difficult "loop?" Where?

SHOE STORE SOLD TO FORMER PARTNER

Entire stock of the S. and S. Shoe Store, E. Main St., was invaded Wednesday and the stock purchased by Lester Stiles, formerly of Xenia, recently of New Carlisle.

Harry Schweibold, who has been managing the store, is disposing of his interest and retiring from business. Mr. Stiles has operated a shoe store in New Carlisle about two years but has disposed of his business there.

The S. and S. Shoe Store has been in business in Xenia, a number of years, and was formerly operated by Mr. Stiles and Mr. Schweibold.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones—"I'm a widow. My husband has gone on a fishing trip."

Mrs. Brown—"I have an original way of cooking fish. I'll bet you never heard of it. But if your husband has any luck I'll tell you how to make it."

By Hilda Hunt

This is the way one family solved the problem of a kitchen where the working facilities were inadequate. There was a pantry on the opposite side of the room, too far away from the sink to make work easy, and no other place for dishes, pots and pans. The sink had but one drainboard held up by legs.

There was considerable waste wall space on either side of the sink.

This, as shown in the sketch, was utilized for two built-out cupboards at the top and for two other cupboards under the drainboards. Two drainboards in place of one were provided to make dishwashing easy by supplying a place for the unwashed dishes at the left, and for the washed dishes at the right.

The drainboards, being wider than the depth of the cupboards, further furnished working shelves for mixing batter and preparing vegetables.

The walls were yellow, so the cupboards were stained a light yellow to match, and to give a bit of color spot the insides of the upper cupboards were colored sea green.

A yellow tiled wall paper with a touch of green was used under the drainboards. The drainboards were blacked and shellacked to make them water-proof, as well as easy to keep clean. A wire basket was fastened to the lower cupboard at the left for damp clothes. A zinc covered table, such as used in operating rooms, was chosen for the work table. A white enameled table would look better, but this particular family preferred

CENTRAL HIGH TO GRADUATE SEVENTY FOUR

CLEVELAND AUTHOR WILL MAKE ADDRESS AT COMMENCEMENT

Baccalaureate Will Be
Sunday—Exercises
At Church

Edmund Vance Cooke, Cleveland, O., noted syndicated writer and author, will deliver the commencement address when seventy-four seniors of Central High School receive their diplomas at graduation exercises at the First M. E. Church Tuesday night, June 7, at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. J. P. Lytle, pastor of the First U. P. Church, has been selected to give the sermon at baccalaureate services for the class at the same church Sunday night, June 5, also at 8 o'clock.

Complete programs for both occasions are being announced by Principal Spencer Shank, of Central High School.

Baccalaureate services will open with the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, presiding. A musical prelude by the Central High orchestra will be followed by the processional to organ accompaniment.

The Rev. D. A. Sellars, pastor of the First Reformed Church, will deliver the invocation. Next on the program is a chorus "Te Deum" by a choir of the First M. E. Church, followed by prayer conducted by the Rev. V. F. Brown, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church.

Bible text will be given by the Rev. Carl Nyblad, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church. The services will continue with "Recessional," a selection by a male quartet of the First M. E. Church.

After the sermon by the Rev. Mr. Lytle, the audience will join in the singing of the first and last verse of "America," and the benediction will be given by the Rev. Russell Burkett, pastor of the Friends Church.

The program for the graduation exercises will open with the high school orchestra prelude and then the processional, after which the Rev. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second U. P. Church, will give the invocation.

A selection from the "Bohemian Girl" by the orchestra will precede the address by Mr. Cooke, and this talk will be followed by a waltz, "Flowers of the Wildwood," by the orchestra.

Presentation of the senior class by Principal Shank and distribution of diplomas to the graduates by Superintendent H. C. Pendry is next on the program, which will close with the audience singing the first and last verses of "America," and the benediction to be pronounced by the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the church.

List of graduates follows:

Elizabeth Alexander, Bernice Bales, Sarah Bales, Gladys Beal, Mary Beale, Bessie Bechell, Bruce Bickett, Robert Bickett, Margaret Bone, Irene Brown, Delmar Bull, Ivan Burr, Kenneth Burrell, Robert Butts, Kenneth Considine, Donald Cost, Gray Creamer, Alice Davis, Bernice Deacon, Imogene Dean, Hilda Devoe, Alice Dillard,

BATTING AVERAGE
OF RESERVES DROPS
WITH HOLIDAY GAME

Team batting average of the Xenia Reserves dropped from .388 to the high water mark this season, to .366 a decrease of twenty points, as a result of the Memorial Day game with the Springfield Tramps. Reserves only made nine hits, four below the average per game this year.

The team fielding average also slumped to .944, because five errors were recorded in the Spring- field contest.

Durnbaugh still continues to top the hitters with a mark of .583 but could only connect with one safe hit in three swings in the last game. Batting averages for the season follow:

IS AGAIN DEFEATED

The Xenia Quot Club continued its uninterrupted march toward the cellar position in the Miami Valley Quot League standing by losing 14 to 4 in a league match with the Eastwood Club of Dayton on the Eastwood courts Tuesday night.

Xenia won three out of nine games the first shift but fared even worse the second shift, winning but one contest.

The local club's next league contest will probably be against Tippecanoe City next Monday night unless the postponed affair with the Shrine Club of Dayton is sand-

NINTH FRAME RALLY ENABLES BUSINESS MEN TO STAGE WIN

Staging a belated ninth inning rally to score four runs, the Senior Business Men finished strong to nose out Central High School by a score of 8 to 7 in an exciting Xenia Playground League soft ball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Tuesday night.

The high school athletes threatened to wipe out this advantage in the last half of the ninth inning but the two runs scored fell one short of a tie.

The defeat was only the second sustained by the high school in the last round.

Central High opened the scoring by tallying once in the second inning, but the business men forged ahead with a three run scoring spurt in the third, only to see the high school tie the count in the last of the ninth.

The next two stanzas passed scoreless but Central tallied one run in the sixth and seventh innings. The business men got one of these back in the eighth and then proceeded to win out in the last round.

Smith and Max Marshall formed the high school battery. Gibney pitched and Dominy caught for the winners.

The Junior Business Men and Kiwanis Club will meet in the second league game of the week Thursday night.

S. B. M. lineup: Turnbull 3b; T. Smith, ss; Hinkle, cf; Flinlay, lb; Gibney, p; Ross, 2b; Shultz, lf; Dominy, c; Gable, rf; G. Smith, utility infielder.

Central lineup: Rakoff, 2b; Doak, ss; M. Marshall, c; Creamer, lf; Mattox, cf; Morton, 1b; Gordon, rf; Smith, p; L. Marshall, 3b.

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

The Ritzies decide to throw a ball and cause a riot in the old town hall.

The Ritzies had been asked to put on a stunt at the Mayville carnival. This springtime carnival was the one big event in which the entire village of Mayville took part.

The day that Mrs. Perkins, head of the program committee, called on Mrs. Collins, mother of Patsy and Marty, and presented the idea of having the club put on a stunt, these two Ritzies scoffed at the idea.

"Jimmie Perkins is having his mother do this just so well invite him to our affairs," objected Marty to his mother when she explained the purpose of Mrs. Perkins' visit.

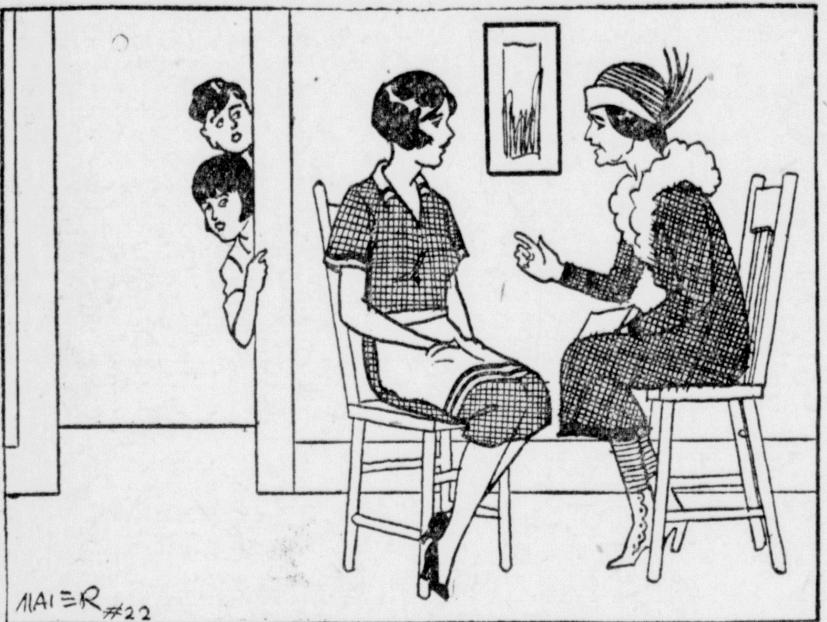

"Oh, well, suit yourself," answered his mother. "I thought you would be quite flattered about being asked."

The more Patsy and Marty thought about it, the more flattering it seemed.

"Of course everyone in town will be there," said Marty.

"And Mrs. Perkins is very important," added Patsy. Being the banker's wife and a very pretty woman besides, was more than enough to make her important in Patsy's eyes, and in fact all the eyes of Mayville.

Suppose we call a meeting and ask Betty Ann and the twins what they think about it," suggested Marty, and they scampered off to collect their Ritzie comrades.

"It sounds great to me," said Rag when they had all gathered in the little carpenter shop. If we can just get up a good stunt and hit with the ball."

"Everybody in town turns out for the carnival," put in Tag. "Do you remember last year when it was so crowded in the old town hall that they had to move some of the booths outside?"

The enthusiasm of the twins won over the somewhat doubtful Patsy and Marty and so it was decided that the Ritzies accept the invitation to put on a stunt at the Mayville carnival.

There was no doubt about it, their stunt would have to be good. Most of the carnival entertainment was given by organizations such as the American Legion and the Woman's Thimble club, and never before had anything been put on by a group of boys and girls. You may be sure that the Ritzies took tomorrow the Ritzies tell how they made the preparations for their stunt that was the big hit at the Mayville carnival. It's a stunt you can give at school, at a party, or at a big town affair just as the Ritzies did.

DAMAGE ACTION IS ACCIDENT SEQUEL; RESCIND CONTRACT

Fred M. Lowery has brought suit in Common Pleas Court against Joseph Valerio for $200 damages, as compensation for damages to his automobile, alleged to have been sustained in an auto accident on the Enon Road near Osborn May 17, in which Valerio is charged with responsibility.

Lowery sets forth that he was driving a coupe, also occupied by his wife and brother-in-law, toward Osborn, when the defendant attempted to pass from the rear without slackening speed or sounding a warning. Valerio, it is charged, pulled over to the right too quickly in going around the coupe and struck the left front wheel, causing the plaintiff's car to swerve off the road and into a ditch, where it was damaged in colliding with a telephone pole. Marshall and Marcella shall be plaintiff's attorneys.

FRAUD PRACTICED

William Finley, defendant in a suit filed by Clinton A. Sipe, has been adjudged guilty of making fraudulent representations as alleged in the petition, in Common Pleas Court, the court ordering the contract between the two principals in the action, rescinded.

Plaintiff was ordered restored to everything lost through fraud practiced by the defendant and Finley is restrained from putting out crops and from use of the property in question, under terms of the decision. The court fixed the appeal bond at $1,250.

PARTITION ALLOWED

Partition of property has been ordered in the case of Roger Stone Ervin and others against Minnie S. Ervin and others in Common Pleas Court.

OVERRULE DEMURRER

Demurrer filed by the defendants in the case of Laura B. Marshall and others against Perry Hanes and others in Common Pleas Court has been overruled by the court, the defendants, excepting to the ruling.

CASE REASSIGNED

Former assignment of the case of Rollin Varner against O. B. LaFong and others for hearing June 6, has been vacated and the case reassigned for trial June 20, according to an entry on file in Common Pleas Court.

VALUE ESTATE

Gross value of the estate of the late Mary G. Spencer is placed at $4,499 in Probate Court, composed in this section of the state.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

The entrance of America into the World war finds Phillip Wayne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Native Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracy's milkman, had had a childish engagement which was objected to by both Mr. Jones and Mrs. Tracy.

Phillip becomes interested in Lura Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's. He takes her to luncheon and shortly finds he is falling in love.

On a midnight ride Lura confesses her love to Phillip. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared. Rod and Phil are the first to enlist. Native goes to the depot to see them off and in her anxiety to see Phil she ignores Rod entirely. This nearly breaks his heart.

Phillip finds he must leave for the southern training camp before seeing his mother again. Here he has a most unusual experience with a nameless girl. He gets detailed to kitchen police and his passes revoked.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXX

PHILLIP DISOBEDIES ORDERS

Phillip gave a sigh of pleasure as he walked into the big reception hall at the country club. He had not realized before how he had missed the sight of pretty girls, the lights and the gaiety of the home atmosphere.

Seating Mrs. Tennis near some of her friends, he swung Marta into a fox-trot.

Then he forgot that his O. D.'s were ugly and ill-fitting—that his shoes were big and clumsy—that he was doing one of the menial things in the army, and simply reveled in the fact that the floor was like glass, the music fine, and he was dancing with the prettiest girl in the room.

"There is Lieutenant Andrews, Phil," whispered Marta. "He is studiously high-hatting me."

"Of course, he will, my dear girl," answered Phil. "You know that according to an unwritten law, I have no right to be here. This is purely for officers."

"Well, I can't help about unwritten laws. I imagine, however, that if this were not wartime, Lieutenant Andrews might not be as welcome here as you."

"What a dear little partisan you are!"

"But Phil, I don't want you to get into trouble through me."

"Don't worry. I like trouble. That man can't worry me much."

Phil wondered what Marta would do if she knew that he was away from camp when he was supposed to be confined to quarters, but saying to himself, "I am not going to let that dad think I am afraid of him," he kept on dancing with Marta or talking with her and her mother, as though he were a major at least.

During one of the times when they "were sitting out" and Mrs. Tennis was asking more questions about his mother, he happened to mention the party that his mother had recently given. He spoke of both Rod and Native, and when they were dancing again Marta asked abruptly: "Tell me about Native, Phil."

"Oh, she was a girl I was engaged to," he answered softly. "She is a good little scout, anyway, although she did break the engagement. I must tell you something funny about her."

"The night we started down here she took a taxi in a pouring rain and got to the train to say good-bye just as we were pulling out. She was dressed in a yellow frock about the shade of the one you have on, and as she stepped out, she fell in the gutter and was spattered from head to foot."

"She hung her arms unexpectedly about my neck as I raised her, and when I got on the car she had transferred most of the water to my face and clothing, and we were funny-looking sights, can tell you."

Phil smiled, expecting Marta to at least smile, but instead she said:

"Poor girl! It was bad enough to say good-bye to you without doing it in that ridiculous manner."

Philip had a new idea.

"Marta, you haven't bade good-bye to anyone lately, have you?"

"No, but I think I know how it would feel to do so."

PRESENTLY he found himself telling Marta about many of his and Native's childish episodes, especially the one in which she had to get in the window because her father had locked her out.

He was so engrossed in this, that he almost bumped into Lieutenant Andrews.

"He'll never believe I did not do that on purpose," said Phil, "even if I would be allowed to explain—which I will not be. So, Marta, if you do not see me for the next week or two, you may know I am in the guard house."

"Children, we must be going if we would get Phillip to the camp in time," said Mrs. Tennis, when they next came up to where she was seated.

"He'll never believe I did not do that on purpose."

Phillip had thought of this, too, but he had determined that he would not suggest it.

"You'll come again soon, won't you?" Marta invited.

"You bet I will—just as soon as I can."

He scurried to his tent and found the "false man" had not been disturbed, and pulling it out he slid it into place.

He could not go to sleep immediately, but lay there thinking of Marta and her mother. It was good to have this little glimpse of what he had known at home. He asked himself when he would have another.

He wondered if "the girl" he had met last night had missed him. It was rather strange that on one night he had met a woman who had drawn from him his experience with Lydia Hilliard, and on the next he had talked to another of Native Jones. For the first time in his life he saw that a man was totally different to different women.

Dear Native! Even with her face all plastered with mud and tears, as he saw her last, he remembered her as beautiful.

The next morning, as he expected, he was ordered to report to Lieutenant Andrews. Determined not to give up until he had to, he faced him as though he had not a care in the world.

"Tracy, you were ordered confined to camp for three days yesterday."

"Yes, sir."

"How does it come you were at the country club last night?"

"I don't know what you mean, sir."

Lieutenant Andrews turned impatiently to Sergeant Muldoon. "Call the guard."

Phil stood respectfully at attention, but his heart was missing at least every third beat.

"I have been seeing a lot of Jerome Kenyon lately. You know he tried to get into the army after you left, but they would not have him on account of his eyes. He is heart-broken and is envying you every minute. I am doing the best I can to cheer him up."

"He asked father the other day if he could not take the place of one of the men in the dairy, so that that man could enlist."

"Dad thought this was wonderful. You know how very careful he has always been about my going out with any young man—particularly you. Well, he has not made the slightest objection to my going with Jerry, and although I am almost ashamed to say it, I have been having the time of my young life with war and Red Cross work as the excuse to get out of the house."

"She's already calling Jerome Kenyon 'Jerry,'" snapped Phillip to Rod, to whom he was reading the letter later.

Evidently she has copied him away from Lucia Randolph. What is there about war that makes every woman clamp onto any man she can get hold of? Afraid there won't be enough to go around?"

"Look here, don't be a fool, Wynne," admonished Rodney. "You ought to be glad that the women who love you are finding something to make them forget themselves. It's damn selfish in you to want them to grieve all the time just for you. Are you going to town tonight?"

"No, Rod, I don't think I will," answered Phillip sulksily. "That shot in the arm I got this morning makes me feel rotten."

"Well, so long then. I might as well tell you that you're not particularly pleasant company. I'm going to get something to eat."

After Rod had gone, Phillip sat on his cot the picture of dejection.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS WILL ENJOY PICNIC IN DAYTON JUNE 22

Knights Templars of District No. 3, comprising nine cities, and their families and Masonic friends will join in a "Field Day" and picnic at the National Military Home in Dayton, June 22, under auspices of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Ohio. A number of Xenia Masons expect to attend the third annual Masonic gathering.

The third district includes Knight Templars located in Xenia, Troy, Piqua, Urbana, Sidney, Greenville, Beloitontaine, Dayton, Springfield and surrounding territory.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the various committees in charge to care for between 1,500 and 2,000 Masons and their families and friends.

The program will include, a parade, exhibition and competitive drills, formation of visiting commanderies, athletic contests for the children, a band concert, dancing and an old fashioned basket picnic.

Children of the Ohio Masonic Home, Springfield, and the boys' and girls' drill squad will be brought to Dayton in special cars as guests of the committee and entertained at Lakeside Park and the Soldiers' Home.

Formation of commanderies for drill and parade will take place on the Home campus near the band stand. Soldier's Home Band will furnish music for the parade, review and retreat.

The Templar "Field Day" is an annual family affair, a real old-fashioned picnic in which all Masons and their families may enjoy a day's outing.

Fourteen similar affairs are being held during the present month at various points in Ohio and it is estimated that more than 30,000 Knights, Masons and their families will attend "Field Day" exercises over the state.

TRAVEL WITHOUT DISCOMFORT

The modern woman knows that the only way to travel in comfort is to get at the wheel, step on the starter, and forget such unpleasant things as railroad schedules and time-tables. Rent a car and drive yourself.

"Your mother has been home over Sunday. I never saw her looking so well. Her face has lost that cold, formal look that always made me afraid of her."

"I expect she has told you before this about Major Aukland. He came over from Washington with her and they held a monster Red Cross mass meeting at your house."

"The major seems to be a splendid man, Wynne, and he is not at all reticent in showing how much he thinks of your mother. Everyone is saying that he has at last persuaded her that his patient waiting should be rewarded. I heard the other day he had proposed to Mrs. Tracy before your father did."

"It seems as though you can't get away from fate after all, doesn't it? Because your mother balked at making Major Aukland your father when she was young, Destiny would now make him your step-father."

"They always even things up, don't they?—this fate and destiny, and sometimes I think they are not above playing a joke now and then."

"I don't know what you mean, sir."

Lieutenant Andrews turned impatiently to Sergeant Muldoon. "Call the guard."

FEAR BALLOONS BLOWN TO SEA

VAN ORMAN MAY WIN AGAIN; HE MADE 705 MILES

Five Of National Race Bags Still Unheard From

BOSTON, June 1.—Two of the three balloons in the national race from Akron, Ohio, seen over New England were blown to sea in a storm during the night it was feared today.

They are United States Army No. 3 observed passing over Nashua, N. H., and headed for Nova Scotia, and the Scripps-Howard entry last sighted over Richford, Vt., on the Canadian line.

Goodyear V., which came to earth in a field at Hancock, Me., fifteen miles from Bar Harbor and the sea, was packed up today by Ward T. Orman, pilot, 1926 national balloon champion, and his side, Walter W. Morton. They had travelled 705 miles, the longest distance of any of the balloons reported from Akron.

AKRON, O., Jun. 1.—All but five of the fifteen balloons which started from here Memorial Day in the national balloon race, had been accounted for here early today, according to reports to race officials. Whereabouts of the missing five were unknown at an early hour this morning.

The ten which were accounted for early today and the point where they landed, follow:

Army No. 1.—Cranberry Lake, N. Y., 400 miles from Akron.

Army No. 2.—Malone, N. Y., 450 miles from Akron.

Army No. 4.—Martinsburg, N. Y., 362 1/2 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 1.—Pope Mills, N. Y., 400 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 2.—Keating Summit, Pa., 175 miles from Akron.

Navy No. 3.—Mottville, N. Y., 225 miles from Akron.

Goodyear, Akron—Bar Harbor, Me., 705 miles from Akron.

Franco-American—Brookville, Pa., 425 miles from Akron.

Beacon-Journal, Akron—Hartsville, N. Y., 350 miles from Akron.

Detroiter No. 1.—Parksville Station, N. Y., 340 miles from Akron.

The five which were still missing early today, are as follows:

Detroiter No. 2.—S. A. Rasmussen, pilot.

Detroiter No. 3.—E. J. Hill, pilot.

Army No. 3.—Capt. E. W. Keyser, pilot.

Davey Tree Expert Company—R. P. Lehr, pilot.

Scripps-Howard—J. E. Boettner, pilot.

DETROIT, June 1.—A probe of the Illinois Athletic Commission, in commenting today upon the proposed investigation by the state legislature of the commission's handling of boxing and wrestling events in Chicago.

The investigating body, appointed by the legislature, is scheduled to convene in the county building here Friday. The members will inquire into charges of "graft," "favoritism," and "fraternal events."

Affidavits are said to be in the hands of investigators, citing alleged instances of graft and conspiracy to "throw" decisions. It is also charged that gambling syndicates here, with branches in New York, practically dictate the course of each major boxing and wrestling match.

PROPOSE PROBE OF ILLINOIS BOXING

AGED VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR MARRIES

QUINCY, Ill., Jun. 1.—Captain W. A. Tyler, 99 years old, probably the sole survivor of the battle at the fall of Ft. Sumter in 1861, and Mrs. Martha Jellison, 70, were married at the Illinois Soldiers' Home by G. V. Gowdy, chaplain.

A crowd of 800 watched the service and heard State Senator Earl B. Search praise the gallantry of Captain Tyler.

Captain Tyler once was superintendent of Arlington Cemetery. His health is good and he is alert mentally.

GOVERNOR APPLIES VETO TO ELECTIONS CODE BILL TUESDAY

Will Call Solons In Special Session To Pass New Law

COLUMBUS, O., June 1.—Declaring that a closer study of the Chappellear-Herbert elections code bill, which he had previously announced, would permit to become law, revealed that it contained provisions "thoroughly iniquitous," Governor Vic Donashay vetoed the bill late last night, and announced he will call the legislature, which adjourned sine die yesterday, into special session in January, to enact election reform legislation.

Whether or not other subjects for legislation will be submitted to the special session was not indicated by the governor. Unless the call stipulates other legislation, the session will be limited to the passage of election laws.

The governor cited as his reason for vetoing the bill, among others the allegation that "corrupt political bosses had so loaded the measure with amendments that they felt sure it would be vetoed."

"At it stands," he declared, "it is a machine highly geared for corrupt political use."

The veto message charged that the bill deprived women of equal representation on state central political committee, by repealing the Ott bill; that it required candidates for state offices to obtain signatures of 1 per cent of voters at the preceding state election, which was "too stringent," that the bill required three registration periods, thus preventing proper check on late registrants and encouraging the voting of "floaters"; that election board clerks were given too much power; that salaries of election officials were so fixed as to discriminate against smaller communities; and that the basis of organization of precincts was the vote in 1926, which was much smaller than the 1924 vote, thus preventing many voters from obtaining ballots, through the provision for printing only 10 per cent more ballots than the number of votes cast in the 1926 election.

KELLY SENTENCED

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—Paul Kelly, motion picture actor, convicted last week of manslaughter as a result of his fatal fist fight with Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor, today was sentenced from one to ten years in state prison. Oral notice of appeal was given and Kelly was returned to jail without bond.

ONTARIO'S NEW OASIS OPENS WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO, June 1.—"When to a boundary line as Detroit is to Windsor."

Another official explained:

"If a resident of Detroit comes here and makes the necessary declaration that he is a legitimate tourist the law has no machinery to check his statement. It has not been explained to us just what a tourist is anyway. The only thing we can do is to give him a permit and fill his order."

And that seems to be the general impression both here and in Detroit.

The two liquor stores here opened for business this morning at 10 o'clock. Stocking of the stores has been in progress for several days with beers and ales, gins and brandies, ryes, Scotches and bourbons, and wines of numerous descriptions.

"What is a tourist, anyway?" one official asked.

EXPECT LINDBERGH TO ACCEPT OFFER TO RETURN ON CRUISER

Favors Faster Vessel Which Leaves Cherbourg Saturday—Will Arrive In America About June 11.

LONDON, June 1.—International News Service understands that Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh will accept President Coolidge's invitation to sail for home on board the light cruiser Memphis instead of the destroyer Breck, sailing from Cherbourg on Saturday as previously arranged.

President Coolidge's cablegram had not reached the American embassy at 10 o'clock but Capt. Lindbergh was informed of its contents by International News Service.

Capt. Lindbergh said that the fact that the Memphis was a fast vessel, enabling him to reach America by June 11 or shortly thereafter appealed to him, though he was sure he would be comfortable aboard the destroyer and did not mind traveling upon the smaller boat.

The airman slept a little later than usual this morning, but arose about 9 o'clock and breakfasted with Mrs. Houghton, wife of the ambassador at 10. Nothing more was upon his program until 11 o'clock, the hour for his departure from the embassy for Epsom Downs where he was to lunch with Lord Lansdale and be the peer's guest while viewing the derby.

Capt. Lindbergh said this morning that some one at the Albert Hall ball last night had given him a good derby tip, but that he had forgotten the name of the horse.

He thought, however, that it might have been "Hot Night."

THE MONEY OR THE CHE-IL

CHICAGO.—Jacqueline Forbes is three years old. She has been cared for since infancy by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meyers, and her mother has not seen her since she was a year old. Now Mrs. Forbes wants her daughter and has filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, since the Meyers family is holding the child until the board of wards will act as her attorney.

Permits have been on sale for nearly a fortnight for residents of the provinces. Thus far, approximately 2,000 cards have been sold.

Neither provincial nor city police anticipate any trouble.

Other police officials said the only trouble they anticipated would be from "motor car bars."

"Public drinking is banned by the new legislation," one official explained.

"This means there will be no drinking in any public places; it must be confined to residences."

Drivers of automobiles who set up bars in their cars and turn up an alley to do their drinking and

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

ASHINGTON, June 1.—America is going to the three-power naval conference at Geneva to do its utmost to induce Great Britain and Japan to apply the 5-5-3 ratio to cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

The United States, in other words, seeks to limit auxiliary craft in the same measure as the Washington treaty of 1922 limited capital ships.

The Coolidge administration, which has convened the Geneva meeting, will attempt there to carry out what the Washington conference left undone.

The American delegation will present the United States' program to powers that were ready to accept it at Washington five years ago. Both Lord Balfour, for

Great Britain, and Mr. Hanabara, for Japan, categorically placed on record the rediness of their respective governments to accept the 5-5-3 ratio for auxiliary craft along corresponding limitation for battle

ENGLAND TO INDIA FLIERS FORCED DOWN

Flight-Lieutenants C. R. Carr and L. S. M. Gillman, attempting to fly from England to India without a stop, were forced by storms to alight in the Persian Gulf. Their plane was wrecked, and the aviators were picked up by a passing ship, after 34 hours and 33 minutes flying time, during which they covered 3,400 miles. The picture shows the unlucky plane, and inset, Lieuts. Carr (left) and Gillman.

Offered a million for his patents, Olson, shown above demonstrating his machine, refused the money. He prefers to promote his own corporation, he says.

LOS ANGELES WATER PERILLED

The feud between farmers of Owens Valley and the City of Los Angeles broke out anew with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles aqueduct, which supplies the city with water. The farmers think they are entitled to. One of the power plants on the aqueduct, with part of the great spillway in the background, is shown.

LOOPS OUT—AND LIVES!

Lieutenant James A. Doolittle holds the distinction of being the only man in the world to make an outside loop-the-loop in an airplane. He did it over McCool Field, Dayton, O., dropping 2,000 feet to gain enough speed—he went 280 miles an hour—to swing up the other side. The loop is dangerous because the downward swing throws the flier with such force against the straps that there is danger of breaking, and several have lost their lives trying to do it. Doolittle used extra straps.

M'GERVEY PUPILS RECITAL ENJOYABLE

With each number well fitted to the voice of the performer, Mrs. William H. Mc'Gervay presented her pupils in a charming recital at Trinity M. E. Church, Tuesday evening. Spring and nature predominated as the keynotes of the program, and the numbers were equally enjoyed by the large audience.

The success of the program was due in a large measure to the accomplished accompaniment of Miss Juanita Rankin, at the piano. The performers included Miss Dorothy Devoe, Miss Glenn Barrows, Mr. Spencer Shank, Miss Ruth Alexander, Mrs. D. L. Croy, Mrs. Homer Spahr, Mrs. Raymond Tobias, Mrs. Charles Brackney and Mrs. John Watkins. Miss Marjorie Douthett and Mrs. A. L. Oglesbee were excused from singing.

Costume numbers were given by Miss Devoe, Mrs. Croy, Mrs. Spahr, Mrs. Tobias, Miss Alexander, Miss Barrows, Mrs. Brackney, and Mrs. Watkins.

Bowls of roses, iris and other spring bloom were used in the recital room for decoration.

SU-THOL for Headaches

Relieve headache or periodic pain with speed and after-effects. German and American doctors prescribed Su-thol to stop all pain.

"I used to have to go to bed for 3 days every month on account of terrible headaches until I started using Su-thol. I used to need many things for relief, but got none until I tried Su-thol. It is the best medicine I ever used. Publish this for the world to see if it would get the benefit I have. Signed, Mrs. C. H. Rutledge, 4474 W. 157th St., Cleveland, Ohio."

BABE RUTH PASSES HIS HOMER RECORD SCHEDULE FOR 1921

By DAVIS J. WALSH

I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 1.—George Ruth, alias Herman, who has been unostentatious as a person's vest this season, suddenly called attention to the fact today that he has neither changed his name nor left the country. George did it with his Little bat during yesterday's double header in Philadelphia where he hit nos. 15 and 16 of the current campaign, bringing figure Elberta out from under with glad, school.

Ruth is ahead of his record schedule for 1921!

In that year, he got his sixteenth on June 3, so that, on the face of things, he has a four day jump on the game. This fact has served to revive the notion that George might better the magic fifty-nine of his greatest year. The writer doesn't think he will.

Of course, it is a good bet, either way. But before you start laying your apples on the counter, it might be well to consider the situation, in toto. Ruth is four days ahead of the 1921 schedule but, in this case, we deal not with days but games. He is only one game to the good over 1921, for in that year he hit his sixteenth during the forty-second.

So much for the games; now for home and "home" then was the Polo grounds, with the right field foul line running into the stand almost back of first base. George Ruth, alias Herman, made his great finish in 1921 at the Polo grounds. In 1927 he will attempt to make it at the Yankee stadium and George himself will tell you that the two fields are as different as milkweed and orchids.

"I almost cried when we had to leave the Polo grounds," he told the writer in all seriousness recently. "It meant that, in order to get to the games, now for

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Dobbins, their daughter, Ruth, and "Dad" Eavens left this week for a months trip through the West.

Invitations have been received from Miss Dorothy Collins who will graduate at Dr. White's Biblical Seminary, New York City, May 22 to 25. Miss Collins has completed a two years' course in Religious Education. She will return home in August and return to Brooklyn, N. Y., in September to take up work in the schools. She will teach Bible under the auspices of the Federated Council of Churches.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lott of Pittsburgh, are here visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jones.

Miss Lorena Dean, of New Jasper, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Devoe.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fawcett is spending the week with her son, Mr. Fred Fawcett.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith, of Dayton, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. LeValley.

Miss Pauline Hollingsworth is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Harvey Kyle, and family, of Bridgeport.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lewis, of Lumberton, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vantress, of Eleazer, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Linkhart.

Miss Georgia Wolary and Miss Pauline Hollingsworth entertained at a birthday party, Thursday afternoon, at the home of the latter.

Both received many beautiful and useful presents. The afternoon was spent with contests, music and a social time. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Those present were: Lorena Ary, Della Mae Roberts, Hazel Goodbar, Ernestine Jones, Ruthanne Smith, Lorena Dean, Gladys Strom, Helen Stoops, Rosella Wolary, Arthella Linkhart and Zora Jones.

break the record, I would have to be so much better than I was in 1921 that I hardly stood a chance. However, I'll be in there trying."

And to give the boy friend his due, he is. Otherwise his mark wouldn't be where it is today.

Reducing his chances to figures, he has exactly 112 games in which to hit forty-four home runs or it will be "dice." This means that he must average slightly worse than one homer in every 2 1/2 games which of course is what he did in 1921 from June 1 onward.

Miss Elizabeth Gifford teacher in Van Lear, Ky., spent Tuesday and Wednesday with friends here. She was enroute to Moundsville, W. Va., where she will attend summer school.

BIBLE THOUGHT
THE FOUNTAIN OF PRAISE—O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it. Psalm 51:15,16.

FLIGHT OF FAR-REACHING VALUE
Charley Lindbergh's successful flight to Paris alone in a land plane, going it "blind," ranks as the most audacious accomplishment in the annals of aviation. The warmth of the reception he received may help to wipe out many past misunderstandings, and this outcome of his conquest of the air passage from New York to Paris has its possibility of values which may be of more vital importance than the things his non-stop flight has contributed to the field of aviation.

The enthusiasm of the welcome and the apparent depth of its sincerity indicate that France has taken Lindbergh to its heart as perhaps it has no other American. And in doing this, it is paying tribute to a heroic young man who has given evidence of being a level-headed, clear-thinking doer, not a "flying fool," except as that phrase is used in an admiring sense for his extraordinary ability in aviation.

As the French become more intimately acquainted with their American guest who has so quickly achieved world fame they are bound to recognize in him some of the qualities which always have been likeable in the higher types of manhood in Yankeeland, and included among these is that jewel known as true modesty. In Lindbergh, America has a conquering hero of such personality and character that there is genuine pleasure that the laurels of the prize flight have been won by such a man, single handed.

DANGER IN WORDS

The power to climb out of the moral backwash into which we slipped after the World War can only come as our tongue ceases to wag with debilitating and enfeebling words and expressions, opines Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in an article in "Psychology" Magazine in which he discusses the effect of words on actions.

Dr. Fosdick feels that the greatest danger to the present generation lies in their willingness to steer their lives by words of weak compliance with popular customs of thought and life. He says:

"When in any generation such words as 'Everybody's doing it,' begin to fly from lip to lip their hypnotic power is very great. This would be dangerous at any time. It is ruinous today, for we are still in the moral backwash of the great war."

There are plays in our theatres," the famous pastor continues, "which, if left to ourselves, we never should produce or care particularly to see. There are social practices where liberty has long since slipped over into license, at which, if we told the truth about ourselves, we inwardly wince. But 'everybody is doing it,' is all the go, and so, our reluctance dissolved by these hypnotic words, we see those plays, we condone those practices. Marvelous is the power of the tongue repeating shibboleths of popularity. It can boast of great exploits.

Other words which exercise an enormous and unnecessary influence on our lives, according to Dr. Fosdick's article in "Psychology" are skeptical and disillusioned words such as, "What is the use?" shoddy words such as "It will get me by," and defeatist words such as "I am all in."

"Let us stop talking to ourselves debilitating words," concludes Dr. Fosdick. "Our tongues could well nigh save us if they could begin to speak sound and hearty words such as should be expected from one who proposes to stand on his own feet, think his own thoughts, choose his own ideals, hold hard by his own soul and do out his duty."

SLUMP IN ROYAL PRICES

In these days of hard-up European royalty, it is a good thing to know just what prices registered princes on the hoof will bring. A divorce suit now running in Paris, in which the former Aimee Crocker, a Sacramento, Calif., woman of 52, five times married, seeks separation from her prince husband, aged 29, gives the latest available market quotation. The price is $250 a month.

Evidence introduced in the divorce suit indicated that Miss Crocker, wanting a companion, married her prince on the agreement that he was to receive $250 a month as long as the comely bride desired to remain hitched. In case of a divorce, the salary was to go down to $125 a month.

With prices as low as this, it is a wonder that some hustling travel agency has not rounded up the over supply of princes and subtlet them for the tourist season. With princes bringing only $250 a month, a good count should find plenty of takers at not much more than his fodder and cigarettes.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A.F. Currier

IRRITABILITY OF THE BLADDER

The bladder is a reservoir for the reception of the urine which has flowed into it from the kidneys by way of the ureters, one from either kidney. It is lined throughout with mucous membrane, which is watertight. When the urine which has flowed into it reaches a certain elevation, an impulse to contract is impressed upon the muscular coat or layer which is behind the mucous membrane, and this contracting or squeezing forces the urine out through its proper canal or duct called the urethra.

It is something similar to that which takes place in an ordinary toilet tank, the intake valve being open, the water rushing in until the proper level is reached, then when the outlet valve is opened it rushes out and the tank immediately begins to refill.

There is usually an announcement to the brain when it is time to empty the bladder and the procedure is accomplished with its consent and direction, but not always by any means, for it frequently occurs during unconsciousness of sleep, in connection with certain diseases of the bladder, and always when the nervous center in the spinal cord, which controls the action of the valvular muscle at the outlet of the bladder, is badly injured, paralyzed, or destroyed.

It appears that the machinery which controls this procedure, which is an experience common to every human being during life, is complicated as well as of supreme importance.

When the bladder fails to perform its function properly it is an irritable bladder. I do not mean that this term covers all or even a large part of the diseased conditions which may happen to the bladder, but it includes many of them and it is a very important condition because of the annoyances and distress it causes.

The S. and S. Shoe Store has been in business in Xenia, a number of years, and was formerly operated by Mr. Stiles and Mr. Schweibold.

It is common to all ages and to both sexes, to women rather more frequently, among adults, than to men. Children are great sufferers from irritability of the bladder, often in connection with worms, or from super acidity of the urine and not infrequently when the bladder is deformed or defective.

Adults suffer with this trouble in connection with many diseases; cystitis or inflammation of the bladder.

der from many causes but particularly the venereal diseases, has this as one of their pronounced symptoms, and the constant desire to empty the organ is extremely annoying.

Alcohol is one of the most potent causes of bladder irritation and one of the things which must be rigorously withheld if improvement is to be expected.

Tumors of the bladder, whether innocent or malignant, cause constant irritability and until recent years were almost hopelessly inaccessible and inoperable, the difficulties with men, in this particular, being much greater than with women.

Tuberculosis of the bladder causes the most intense irritability and distress, the desire to evacuate it being continuous and yet evacuation brings no relief.

Women suffer more than men from this condition, but they may also obtain some relief from surgical measures which are not available to men.

Men suffer on the other hand with irritable bladder, as women do not, in connection with disease of the prostate gland, that troublesome disease so common in old men, and which in advanced age becomes merely one of the evidences of the general decay and deterioration of all the organs and tissues.

The care of the very aged, both men and women, is rendered doubly difficult because of the weakness of the bladder from which they too often suffer.

Great improvements have been made in the treatment of irritable bladder within the last half century.

The invention of the cystoscope has also done much to improve the condition of sufferers with bladder disease, for it enables the surgeon to inspect the interior of the bladder and determine by actual vision what its physical condition may be, and also the nature of the demands upon him for relief.

Irrigation of the bladder with plain or medicated hot water will often suppress a distressing irritability, while soothing medicines like infusion of buchu leaves, flaxseed tea, chamomile tea and various other available remedies, some of them old and time-honored, may be employed effectively by internal administration.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

BUILT-IN CUPBOARDS AID EFFICIENCY

By Hilda Hunt

This is the way one family solved the problem of a kitchen where the working facilities were inadequate. There was a pantry on the opposite side of the room, too far away from the sink to make work easy, and no other place for dishes, pots and pans. The sink had but one drainboard held up by legs. There was considerable waste wall space on either side of the sink. This was as shown in the sketch, was utilized for two built-out cupboards at the top and for two other cupboards under the drainboards. Two drainboards in place of one were provided to make dishwashing easy by supplying a place for the unwashed dishes at the left, and for the washed dishes at the right. The drainboards, being wider than the depth of the cupboards, further furnished working shelves for mixing batter and preparing vegetables.

The walls were yellow, so the cupboards were stained a light yellow to match, and to give a bit of color spot the insides of the upper cupboards were colored sea green. A yellow tiled wall paper with a touch of vermilion. The gingham was repeated in a tiny ruffle at the edge of the shelf above the table. Frequently where gingham is used for windows a ruffle is carried out in pads with tiny organdy ruffles for the chairs. This is particularly attractive where the kitchen is used as a breakfast room.

A head-on collision between two freight trains at Selma resulted in the wrecking of one engine and the injury of two of the trainmen.

The McKinley building was the scene of the most important social event of the school year, the junior reception, when the high school class of 1908 dispensed its hospitality to the class of 1907.

After her death, "I found that I was happiest when busy. Maybe that is why I have been successful in business because I have always been at work during the time you are on your reducing diet, your flabby flesh will become solid and muscular.

It is virtually impossible to arrange a diet that will be suitable for each person who desires to reduce weight. But the general plan consists of creating menus that provide sufficient food to appease your appetite, yet at the same time do not exceed the maximum number of calories allowed for a reducing diet.

Reducing diets should not exceed 1400 calories per day. A good plan is to allow 300 calories for breakfast, 300 for lunch and 800 for dinner. All the food one eats contains calories and must be counted.

It is a good idea to measure the proportions of your food carefully so that you will not go above the desired number of calories. You should also keep a list of all foods eaten during the day, together with the number of calories each portion contains. In this way you will have a complete record of the exact amount of calories contained in the food you have eaten, and it is found very helpful as a reminder.

Below I have listed a few example menus that comprise a reducing diet which you can follow with the assurance that they do not contain more than the desired number of calories.

Mr. Moser has held a "closing-out" sale of the stock of his former store for several weeks, ending last Saturday. He is planning to take a trip of two months before re-opening business.

CENTRAL HIGH TO GRADUATE SEVENTY FOUR

CLEVELAND AUTHOR
WILL MAKE ADDRESS
AT COMMENCEMENTBaccalaureate Will Be
Sunday—Exercises
At Church

Edmund Vance Cooke, Cleveland, O., noted syndicate writer and author, will deliver the commencement address when seventy-four seniors of Central High School receive their diplomas at graduation exercises at the First M. E. Church Tuesday night, June 7, at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. J. P. Lytle, pastor of the First U. P. Church, has been selected to give the sermon at baccalaureate services for the class at the same church Sunday night, June 5, also at 8 o'clock.

Complete programs for both occasions are being announced by Principal Spencer Shank, of Central High School.

Baccalaureate services will open with the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, presiding. A musical prelude by the Central High orchestra will be followed by the processional to orchestra accompaniment.

The Rev. D. A. Sellars, pastor of the First Reformed Church, will deliver the invocation. Next on the program is a chorus "Te Deum" by a choir of the First M. E. Church, followed by prayer conducted by the Rev. V. F. Brown, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church.

Bible text will be given by the Rev. Carl Nybladh, pastor of Christ Epis. Carol Church, and will continue with "Recessional," a selection by a male quartet of the First M. E. Church.

After the sermon by the Rev. Mr. Lytle, the audience will join in the singing of the first and last verse of "America," and the benediction will be given by the Rev. Russell Burkett, pastor of the Friends Church.

The program for the graduation exercises will open with the high school orchestra prelude and then the processional, after which the Rev. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second U. P. Church, will give the invocation.

A selection from the "Bohemian Girl," by the orchestra will precede the address by Mr. Cooke, and this talk will be followed by a waltz, "Flowers of the Wildwood," by the orchestra.

Presentation of the senior class by Principal Shank and distribution of diplomas to the graduates by Superintendent H. C. Pendry is next on the program, which will close with the audience singing the first and last verses of "America," and the benediction to be pronounced by the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the church.

List of graduates follows:

Elizabeth Alexander, Bernice Bales, Sarah Bales, Gladys Beal, Mary Beals, Bossie Bechtell, Bruce Bickett, Robert Bickett, Margaret Bone, Irene Brown, Delmar Bull, Ivan Burr, Kenneth Burrill, Robert Butts, Kenneth Considine, Donald Cost, Gray Creamer, Alice Davis, Bernice Deacon, Imogene Dean, Hilda Devoe, Alice Dillard.

BATTING AVERAGE
OF RESERVES DROPS
WITH HOLIDAY GAME

Team batting average of the Xenia Reserves dropped from .388 to the high water mark this season, to .366 a decrease of twenty points, as a result of the Memorial Day game with the Springfield Tramps. Reserves only made nine hits, four below the average per game this year.

The team fielding average also slumped to .944, because five errors were recorded in the Springfield contest.

Durnbaugh still continues to top the hitters with a mark of .583 but could only connect with one safe hit in three swings in the last game. Batting averages for the season follow:

XENIA QUOT CLUB
IS AGAIN DEFEATED

The Xenia Quot Club continued its uninterrupted march toward the cellar position in the Miami Valley Quot League standing by losing 14 to 4 in a league match with the Eastwood Club of Dayton on the Eastwood courts Tuesday night.

Xenia won three out of nine games the first shift but fared even worse the second shift, winning but one contest.

The local club's next league contest will probably be against Tippecanoe City next Monday night unless the postponed affair with the Shrine Club of Dayton is sandhed.

• FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY •

The Rovin' Ritzies by Flo Frederick

The Ritzies decide to throw a ball and cause a riot in the old town hall.

The Ritzies had been asked to put on a stunt at the Mayville carnival. This springtime carnival was the one big event in which the entire village of Mayville took part.

The day that Mrs. Perkins, head of the program committee, called on Mrs. Collins, mother of Patsy and Marty, and presented the idea of having the club put on a stunt, these two Ritzies scoffed at the idea.

"Jimmie Perkins is having his mother do this just so we'll invite him to our affairs," objected Marty to his mother when she explained the purpose of Mrs. Perkins' visit.

"Oh, well, suit yourself," answered his mother. "I thought you would be quite flattered about being asked."

The more Patsy and Marty thought about it, the more flattering it seemed.

"Of course everyone in town will be there," said Marty.

"And Mrs. Perkins is very important," added Patsy. Being the banker's wife and a very pretty woman besides, was more than enough to make her important in Patsy's eyes, and in fact all the eyes of Mayville.

Suppose we call a meeting and ask Betty, Ann and the twins what they think about it," suggested Marty, and they scampered off to collect their Ritzie comrades.

"It sounds great to me," said Rag when they had all gathered in the little carpenter shop. "If we can just get up a good stunt and put it over, we'll make a real name for our club."

"Everybody in town turns out for the carnival," put in Tag. "Do you remember last year when it was so crowded in the old town hall that they had to move some of the booths outside?"

The enthusiasm of the twins won over the somewhat doubtful Patsy and Marty, and so it was decided that the Ritzies accept the invitation to put on a stunt at the Mayville carnival.

There was no doubt about it, their stunt would have to be good. Most of the carnival entertainment was given by organizations such as the American Legion and the Woman's Thimble club, and never before had anything been put on by a group of boys and girls. You may be sure that the Ritzies took

"We don't have to do it just that way," answered her brother. "We can have something else for them to throw at instead of a nigger's head. For instance, we could have wooden dolls, hinged to a rack, that would fly backward when hit with the ball."

This was beginning to really sound like something, and if it could be worked out it would be sure to be a lot of fun for everyone likes to throw a ball."

It soon developed that there was work for everyone. The boys made the rack while the girls dressed the wooden dolls. How earnestly they worked at their task, for wasn't their stunt to be seen by the whole town of Mayville instead of a gathering of boys and girls in Marty's back yard?

Tomorrow the Ritzies tell how they made the preparations for their stunt that was the big hit at the Mayville carnival. It's a stunt you can give at school, at a party, or at a big town affair just as the Ritzies did.

DAMAGE ACTION IS ACCIDENT SEQUEL; RESCIND CONTRACT

Fred M. Lowery has brought suit in Common Pleas Court against Joseph Valero for $200 damages, as compensation for damages to his automobile, alleged to have been sustained in an auto accident on the Enon Road near Osborn May 17, in which Valero is charged with responsibility.

Lowery sets forth that he was driving a coupe, also occupied by his wife and brother-in-law, toward Osborn, when the defendant attempted to pass from the rear without slackening speed or sounding a warning. Valero, it is charged, pulled over to the right too quickly in going around the coupe and struck the left front wheel, causing the plaintiff's car to swerve off the road and into a ditch, where it was damaged in colliding with a telephone pole. Marshall and Marshall are plaintiff's attorneys.

FRAUD PRACTICED
William Finley, defendant in a suit filed by Clestie A. Sipe, has been adjudged guilty of making fraudulent representations as alleged in the petition, in Common Pleas Court.

VALUE ESTATE
Gross value of the estate of the late Mary G. Spencer is placed at $4,499 in Probate Court, composed of personality, $299, and real estate valued at $4,200. Debts, including cost of administration, amount to $502, leaving the estate with a net value of $3,997.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

WAYNESVILLE AND XENIA BUS SERVICE

Authority to extend their motor transportation line from Waynesville to Xenia was granted the King Brothers by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission Tuesday, according to an announcement of the Ohio Motor Bus Association.

This is considered another important link in the bus system established by this line, which now serves Dayton, Franklin, Middlebury, Xenia, Waynesville, Lebanon, Sharonville and other points in this section of the state.

OVERRULE DEMURRER
Demurrrer filed by the defendants in the case of Laura B. Marshall and others against Perry Hanes and others in Common Pleas Court has been overruled by the court, the defendants excepting to the ruling.

CASE REASSIGNED
Former assignment of the case of Rollin Varner against O. B. LaFond and others for hearing June 6, has been vacated and the case reassigned for trial June 20, according to an entry on file in Common Pleas Court.

Elaborate Preparations
Elaborate preparations are being made by the various committees in charge to care for between 1,500 and 2,000 Masons and their families and friends.

The program will include a parade, exhibition and competitive drills, formation of visiting commanderies, athletic contests for the children, a hand concert, dancing and an old fashioned basket picnic.

Children of the Ohio Masonic Home, Springfield, and the boys' band and boys' drill squad will be brought to Dayton in special cars as guests of the committee and entertained at Lakeside Park and the Soldiers' Home.

Formation of commanderies for drill and parade will take place on the Home campus near the band stand. Soldier's Home Band will furnish music for the parade, review and retreat.

The Templar "Field Day" is an annual family affair, a real old-fashioned picnic in which all Masons and their families may enjoy a day's outing.

Fourteen similar affairs are being held during the present month at various points in Ohio and it is estimated that more than 30,000 Knights, Masons and their families will attend "Field Day" exercises over the state.

SORE THROAT RELIEF

Relief guaranteed with one swallow of THOXINE

"He'll never believe I did not do that on purpose."

Philip had thought of this, too, but he had determined that he would not suggest it.

"You'll come again soon, won't you?" Marta invited.

"You bet I will—just as soon as I can."

He scurried to his tent and found the "false man" had not been disturbed, and pulling it out he slid into its place.

He could not go to sleep immediately, but lay there thinking of Marta and her mother. It was good to have this little glimpse of what he had known at home. He asked himself when he would have another.

He wondered if "the girl" he had met last night had missed him. It was rather strange that on one night he had met a woman who had drawn him from his experience with Lyla Hilliard, and on the next he had talked to another of Nattie Jones.

For the first time in his life he saw that a man was totally different to different women.

Dear Nattie! Even with her face all plastered with mud and tears, as he saw her last, he remembered her as beautiful.

The next morning, as he expected, he was ordered to report to Lieutenant Andrews. Determined not to give in until he had to, he faced him as though he had not a care in the world.

"I expect she has told you before this about Major Auckland. He came over from Washington with her and they held a monster Red Cross mass meeting at your house."

"The major seems to be a splendid man, Wynne, and he is not at all reticent in showing how much he thinks of your mother. Everyone is saying that he has at last persuaded her that his patient waiting should be rewarded. I heard the other day he had proposed to Mrs. Tracy before your father died."

"It seems as though you can't get away from fate after all, doesn't it? Because your mother balked at making Major Auckland your father when she was young, Destiny would not make him your step-father."

"They always even things up, don't they?—this fate and destiny, and sometimes I think they are not above playing a joke now and then."

PHIL started to tear the sheet in two, but as he did so, his eye caught the next sentence and he went on.

"I have been seeing a lot of Jerome Kenyon lately. You know he tried to get into the army after you left, but they would not have him on account of his eyes. He is heart-broken and is envying the best I can to cheer him up."

"He asked father the other day if he could not take the place of one of the men in the dairy, so that that man could enlist."

Lieutenant Andrews turned impatiently to Sergeant Muldoon. "Call the guard."

Phil stood respectfully at attention, but his heart was missing at least every third beat.

In a moment the sergeant came back with an uninterested and very much frightened soldier, who saluted.

"Were you on guard duty last night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was Private Tracy absent from his cot?"

"No, sir. I reported every hour until now, and Private Tracy was in his cot at those hours."

Phil stopped, wondering where he stood as he realized that his rush had succeeded and that there was nothing the Lieutenant could do, although he had himself seen him at the country club—and he knew that Phil knew he had seen him.

After a moment he said to the guard: "You may go."

The man saluted and left.

PHIL did not trust himself to look at the Lieutenant. He knew that the battle was now on.

"Tracy is back on your duties at the kitchen." Hardly waiting for Phil's parting salute, as he turned smartly, the officer left the office.

"You ought to belong to the navy, Wynne," said Rod, who managed to get a word with his friend a little later, "because if anything should happen that you fell overboard, you would not get wet."

"Who told you about it?" asked Phil with a grin. "You needn't worry about me with that idiot. If I can't outwit Lieutenant Andrews some way, I deserve the guard house."

"Don't get too proud of yourself, but you're only to get stable police this time. I just heard the order that you were to be transferred there at the end of your three days stay here."

"Good, I'll have a chance to ride." In his pride, Phillip Wynn Tracy IV made everyone think, at least, that he was having the time of his life.

I am disturbed at the thought of his mother marrying again. Read what he does in the next installment.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS WILL ENJOY PICNIC IN DAYTON JUNE 22

Knights Templars of District No. 3, comprising nine cities, and their families and Masonic friends will join in a "Field Day" and picnic at the National Military Home in Dayton, June 22, under auspices of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Ohio. A number of Xenia Masons expect to attend the third annual Masonic gathering.

The third district includes Knights Templars located in Xenia, Troy, Piqua, Urbana, Sidney, Greenville, Bellefontaine, Dayton, Springfield and surrounding territory.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the various committees in charge to care for between 1,500 and 2,000 Masons and their families and friends.

The program will include a parade, exhibition and competitive drills, formation of visiting commanderies, athletic contests for the children, a hand concert, dancing and an old fashioned basket picnic.
